

Primary Care Model for Wales – The primary care approach to place-based care Implementing the model

What is primary care - Primary care is used to describe a first point of contact for people in need of healthcare. Effective primary care relies on multi-professional working. This means well-trained, agile professionals work together as a team to make use of everyone's skills and provide better person-centred outcomes and experience.

AIM; To agree local plan making best use of existing resources and building stronger relationships between professionals at a community level